'ONE IN A MILLION'

A long-serving Liberal Democrat councillor has died suddenly at her home in Kingston.

Councillor Chrissie Hitchcock, pictured below, who served as a Grove ward councillor for more than 25 years, died on Monday night.

Known for her outspoken, forthright views, she was twice Mayor of Kingston from 1997-98 and again from 2010-11.

Liberal Democrat group leader Councillor Liz Green said: "She is a great loss to residents, council and Lib Dems.

"She will be so missed, she was one in a million."

Deputy Lib Dem leader Coun Rachel Reid said: "She absolutely loved Kingston, she was a Kingston person through and through and she would always do the right thing for anyone who lived in her ward, or in the borough.

"She loved planning. That's the commitment to Kingston. Even though she wasn't that well she never gave up. She was a fighter to the end.

"She was inspirational. She was one of the first women councillors in our group. We always got on very well. She will be terribly missed."

Council leader Kevin Davis said: "Very sad to hear this. A real Kingstonian who I liked and admired."

Coun Hitchcock's death follows the death of former Conservative councillor, Frank Thompson, who died on Saturday.

KILLER'S FLIGHT

Jury shown CCTV of son's journey to Paris after killing mum

REPORTER

jon.sharman@london.newsquest.co.uk

Jurors in the case of Sean Heiss, the Surbiton man charged with murdering his mother, have been shown CCTV images of his last movements before he fled the country.

Mr Heiss admits killing his mother Margot Sheehy, 58, pictured, in June 2012, but denies murder. He was extradited from Spain to stand trial.

Detectives pieced together his movements using CCTV and bank card transactions as he made his way from his mother's flat in Springfield Road, Kingston, to the Eurostar terminal at St Pancras International on June 11 and 12.

Detective Constable Murray Bannister led the Old Bailey jury through an hour-long CCTV compilation on Friday.

Mr Heiss' first stop was McCluskey's newsagent in Bloomfield Road, near Ms Sheehy's flat, where he first used her bank cards to buy Rizla papers at about 7pm on June 11.

He is next seen walking past Pizza Express in St Mark's Hill, Surbiton, carrying a holdall, at 2.23am the following morning.

From there he visited ATMs at Barclays and Halifax in Victoria Road, withdrawing a total of £200.

Mr Heiss then boarded an N65 bus outside Waitrose in Claremont Road, which he rode to Richmond.

After finding Richmond station closed, he boarded an N33 bus towards Hammersmith at 3.32am. From there, he got on an N9 bus towards Heathrow, where he arrived at 4.45am.

He entered the Tube just after 5am, and arrived at St Pancras International at 7.48am.

After buying his ticket and passing through security screenings he boarded a train to Paris shortly after 9am.

Prosecutor Sarah Plaschkes QC told the jury last week: "Police officers found Margaret Sheehy's lifeless body lying on the sofa in the front room of her home.

"She had sustained serious injuries to her head and face, and she had been strangled to death.

"She was described as a model employee, described as having a happy disposition, conscientious and hard-working."

The trial continues.

INQUEST: Coroner rules death of soldier, 23, from embolism was accidental Royal Marine died snorkelling

CHIEF REPORTER

NAZIA DEWJI

london.newsquest.co.uk

A former Tiffin School pupil died after suffering an embolism while snorkelling with the Royal Marines in Egypt, an inquest heard.

Lieutenant Damien Moran, 23, died on Saturday, August 3, 2013, in the last week of a four-week adventure training stint in the eastern city of El Quseir.

He had been part of a diving expedition organised by 40 Commando Royal Marines, when he was affected by a gas air embolism while snorkelling on a shallow reef after training had finished for the day.

His lifeless body was brought out of the water but he was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital, an inquest heard on Friday.

Last year, his colleague Royal Marine Captain Samuel Shephard was awarded a George Cross for his heroic efforts in trying to rescue Lt Moran.

The captain had dived into the sea as daylight faded to bring up Lt Moran – who had sunk deep into the water.

At the inquest at West London Coroner's Court, questions were raised about training and safety warnings given to the group.

As a matter of routine Major Mark Atkinson said: "We would point out to them that you should not do excessive exercise after training."

He said Lt Moran was known to deep dive in levels over 15m deep – something

Draped in a union flag: Colleagues carrying the coffin of Lieutenant Damien Moran, right that he was previously warned not to do.

But father Brian Moran said: "My son Day – he would take a risk but he was not a raving lunatic."

Major Innes Catton of the unit that investigated the death said one major finding had been the "anomalies in procedure" for paperwork.

He said the group had requested the snorkelling approval – which was granted – at "very late notice".

Doctor Ian Calder gave evidence about a postmortem examination where he said the body which he examined had been "fit and well-nourished" but there had been a rupture in the lung allowing blood fluid through.

Born on April 5, 1990, Lt Moran – known as "Day" – lived with his family first in Twickenham, then Singapore, before moving to Fern Hill Road, Kingston, where he attended Tiffin School from 2001 to 2008.

He later gained a first class honours degree in marine biology from Southampton University where he found a passion for water sports.

Lt Moran was commissioned into the Royal Marines in September 2011 and passed for duty in December 2012.

He spent four months serving in Helmand Province as part of Operation Herrick 17, and was in Egypt for his unit's recovery from the operation.

A statement from Brian Moran said: "Day was happy with life and looking forward to the Egypt trip and a diving trip with his girlfriend."

The statement added that, despite having seen the 'horrors of war', he was still full of optimism.

Lt Moran received a funeral with full military honours at St Peter's Church in Norbiton, where his coffin, draped in a union flag, was carried by colleagues to the music The Gael, the theme from the movie Last of the Mohicans.

Recording a verdict of accidental death, Coroner Chinyere Inyama said: "I rarely use the word tragic because all deaths are tragic but this is one of those times the word is appropriate."

Man asleep at wheel jailed for killing 'talented young mother'

REPORTER

RACHAEL BURFORD

rachael.burford@
london.newsquest.co.uk

A man who killed a "talented mother and wife" after falling asleep at the wheel of his van has been jailed for four years.

Shanmugarasa Vinayagasivampillai, of Meadway, Surbiton, hit Louisa Gammie while she was out jogging in Old Malden Lane in Worcester Park on the morning of November 8.

Mrs Gammie, the mother of a 20-month-old child, died in hospital a day later.

Vinayagasivampillai pleaded guilty to causing death by dangerous driving in April and was sentenced at Guildford Crown Court on Friday.

The court heard how Vinayagasivampillai, a Sri Lankan refugee who came to the UK in 2000, had been working a 12-hour shift in Sainsbury's the day before the accident and was doing a favour for his uncle when he fell asleep at the wheel.

Rossano Scamardella, prosecuting, told the court Vinayagasivampillai was seen falling asleep in a police car and in his cell after his arrest.

Mr Scamardella said: "It seems he just could not keep his eyes open."

The court also heard how he had two previous driving convictions for drink-driving and driving while banned.

The defence said Vinayagasivampillai had been working hard to provide for his family, rarely getting more than four hours' sleep a night while working two supermarket jobs and had been "deeply affected" by the accident.

Killed: Louisa Gammie with her husband David Gammie

Defence counsel Nick Barracough said his client knew "nothing that could be said at this stage that would make this tragedy any better for the family".

He added: "He has not driven since the accident and it is his intention to never drive again."

Judge Christopher Critchlow accepted that Vinayagasivampillai suffered "sleeplessness and nightmares" because of his actions, but added: "You did have previous convictions that showed an attitude to a motor car that does not stand you in good light.

"There are family members out there to which you have provided significant financial support.

"You are not someone who went out to cause harm, but you should have been nowhere near a motor car.

Jailed: Shanmugarasa Vinayagasivampillai

"Nothing this court can say can bring back to her family a talented young mother."

Vinayagasivampillai, 34, also received a six-year driving ban and will have to re-take his driving test before he is allowed to get back behind the wheel.

Detective Sergeant Gary Wright, from Surrey Police's collision investigation unit, said: "Shanmugarasa Vinayagasivampillai's reckless actions by getting behind the wheel that morning when he was extremely tired had catastrophic consequences which Louisa Gammie's family will have to live with for the rest of their lives."

Girl raped near palace

A 13-year-old girl was raped by a riverside path between Kingston and Hampton Court Palace, police have said.

The girl was attacked in a grassy area near Barge Walk by an Asian man aged somewhere between his late teens and early 20s, on Sunday, May 17.

Police said she met the man the day before in Camden and agreed to meet him.

He was wearing blue jeans and a dark-coloured leather jacket.

They want to speak to a couple who were walking towards Hampton Court, remembered by the victim.

The woman, who police said asked about the girl's welfare had a blonde bob, fair skin and was wearing a denim jacket.

Barge Walk runs between Kingston Bridge and Hampton Court Palace along the River Thames.

Detective Constable Pete Condron of the Sexual Offences, Exploitation and Child Abuse Command, said: "I would appeal to anyone who saw anything suspicious or has information to contact us immediately.

"In particular, I would appeal to the couple who approached the victim to call us. They may hold vital information about what happened."

Anyone with information is urged to call the police incident room on 020 8721 4251 or via 101.

To remain anonymous call Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Vote for green group to win grant

A Surbiton environmental group needs your votes to help it win a £10,000 grant that would revitalise one of the town's most popular green spaces.

Surbiton Wildlife Group has entered insurance giant Aviva's Community Fund competition, which offers funding to organisations and individuals looking to improve their area.

The group is bidding for £10,000 to regenerate the pond and adjacent water feature in Claremont Gardens, off Claremont Road.

Tom Hooker, from Surbiton Wildlife Group, said: "Claremont Gardens is probably the most popular and well used of all Surbiton's parks, but has become neglected due to limited council resources and finance.

"The wildlife pond has never been maintained and has not struck a natural balance.

"We are applying for an Aviva community grant to revitalise the pond. If we're successful, this will enable the work to happen late autumn this year.

"This is our priority as the pond should be a valuable habitat for wildlife and a much more attractive central feature."

Pond: Surbiton Wildlife Group want to tidy Claremont Gardens

The project would involve draining the pond, removing invasive plants and silt and refilling it with more suitable native marginals.

Voting closes on Saturday, May 30. The nine projects with the highest number of votes are then put before a judging panel, with a winner announced on June 30.

Each person can cast up to 10 votes across several projects or the one they support the most.

Visit community-fund.aviva.co.uk/voting/project/view.

RACHAEL BURFORD talks to former MP Ed Davey about losing his seat and future plans

My election aftermath

Two weeks ago, he held back tears after finding out he had lost the Kingston and Surbiton parliamentary seat he had held since 1997.

But now, Edward Davey admits not being an MP for the first time in 18 years may actually be for the best.

In his first interview since losing the general election on May 7, the former Energy Secretary revealed he plans to stay in Surbiton, dismissed rumours of a London mayoral campaign and gave his backing to Norman Lamb as the next Liberal Democrat leader.

Meeting at the Victoria pub in Surbiton, Davey is joined by his former campaign manager, Jonah Oliver, 19, who was a toddler when his boss first won the Kingston and Surbiton seat.

Davey says that one of the hardest things after losing the election was laying off his staff.

"It's not just me who has lost my job," he says.

"It is also all of my staff, who have worked so hard for me."

"It has been difficult letting them all go and clearing out my office in Westminster."

He said he was not worried about losing until 48 hours before election night, and even then he thought he might just make it.

He says: "I can't say I thought I was going to lose because I didn't. When I was knocking on doors, I found a lot of people wanting to vote for me, but not my party, and that was worrying."

"The Conservatives ran a scare campaign, which was effectively vote Labour or Liberal Democrat or Green or UKIP and get the SNP."

"We were accused of running a negative campaign by the Tories in Kingston, but we never said anything that wasn't true. Nationally, the Conservative campaign was a scare tactic. Although, don't get me wrong, it was obviously a very successful one."

Davey was the first Lib Dem Secretary of State to lose his seat on election night, but not the last.

By 5am, Chief Secretary to the Treasury Danny Alexander and Business Secretary Vince Cable had both been ousted.

Davey said he found out he had lost just after midnight, some three hours before he actually arrived at the count.

"Obviously, it was devastating," he says.

"I think if I had been the only one to lose it would have been much worse. It was a devastating night nationally for us."

"An MP walks into a count knowing if they have won or lost. Jonah called me just after midnight saying the samples from the vote verifications showed it was not the result we wanted."

"I've walked into that room twice thinking I had lost. The first time was in 1997 when I had actually won by 56 votes after three recounts."

"After four acceptance speeches, I finally had to make my defeated speech."

By Friday afternoon, 49 Liberal Democrats had lost their seats, leaving the party with just eight MPs.

Leader Nick Clegg resigned in the aftermath, sparking a leadership contest. Davey himself had once been tipped as a future party leader.

"I think it was the right decision for Nick and the party," says Davey.

"Nick has been a very good leader, but we took a hammering that night. The history books will judge Nick not just as a great Liberal leader but as a great politician."

When asked who he would support as the next Lib Dem leader, Davey does not hesitate.

"Norman Lamb," he said. "He is one of my best friends in politics. Norman and I have worked together on lots of issues. His ideas are game changing. He has real vision."

Davey is also quick to rule out rumours he would be the Lib Dem's London Mayor candidate in 2016.

But he did not rule out running again against James Berry in 2020, or even standing in the local council elections in 2018.

He now admits that losing his seat might have been the "best thing" in terms of looking after his 15-month-old daughter Ellie and seven-year-old son John, who is disabled.

"It has been wonderful spending more time with them but I will have to find a job soon. I have to put food on the table," he says.

His future, for now at least, remains in Surbiton, his home for the past 20 years.

He said: "Surbiton is a wonderful place to live."

"I certainly don't intend to leave the borough."

Ceremony: Howard Jones's widow Judith Jones and mayor of Kingston Ken Smith unveil the bench KT91575

In memory

A commemorative bench was unveiled for former Kingston Conservative leader Howard Jones on Monday.

Councillor Jones, who represented St James ward, died in October last year after serving on Kingston Council for more than 20 years.

In one of his last acts as mayor of Kingston, Ken Smith performed the unveiling ceremony.

He said: "Many people came despite the less than perfect weather. A testament to what a great man Howard Jones was."

Tireless champion of women dies aged 95

CHIEF REPORTER
NAZIA DEWJI

ndewji@
london.newsquest.co.uk

Former Kingston mayor and women's cycling pioneer Eileen Gray has died.

Mrs Gray, previously the president of the British Cycling Federation, vice-chair of the British Olympic Committee, women's freemason and an MBE and CBE, died on Wednesday, May 20, aged 95.

During the 2012 London Olympics the Surbiton resident was one of the oldest torchbearers aged 92 and even featured in Kingston's souvenir guide for the Games.

Former Kingston mayor Councillor Ken Smith said: "She was a marvellous woman. You don't often come across a woman of her standing. Her enthusiasm was infectious and in her time she really took on women's rights to a new height. It is incredibly sad news to hear about her."

He added Mrs Gray had particularly enjoyed a visit from a member of the British Cycling Association he had arranged at her nursing home shortly before she died.

New Kingston mayor Roy Arora said: "Eileen was an extraordinary person and she will be greatly missed by all who knew her. She moved to Kingston just after the war when her husband got a job working for

Pioneers: Eileen Gray and her team in 1946

Kingston Council.

"In 1946 she was part of the first ever Women's British Cycling Team which competed in (and won) an international competition in Copenhagen. That was the beginning of her tireless journey of getting women's cycling on the sporting map."

Mrs Gray attended 16 Olympic Games and even mucked in to help make the cycling track at Herne Hill Velodrome fit for purpose for the 1948 Olympic Games.

In 2013 when organisers of the Prudential Ride London decided only the men's cycling races would come through the royal borough, she told the Surrey Comet: "I think the girls should get stuck in like I used to when I wanted something.

"If you want something these days you have to fight for it."

Mrs Gray, a great-grandmother, was born in Bermondsey and later moved to Dulwich. She discovered cycling during the Second World War.

During her lifetime she championed women's cycling in Britain and even founded the Women's Cycling Racing Association.

She also served the community as president of Sport Kingston while also chairing the London Youth Games Board for more than 30 years.

In 2010 she was also inducted into the British Cycling Hall of Fame for her contribution to the sport.

Council leader's PR role to be scrutinised

Kingston Council leader Kevin Davis will have his role at a PR company scrutinised in public during an extraordinary council meeting next month.

The Conservative leader will argue his position within Cratus Communications, the company he founded, does not create a potential conflict of interest, as opposition Liberal Democrats claim.

In a new development, Councillor Ian George, former lead member for housing, will also have his work as a senior account manager at PR company Thorncliffe, which specialises in planning, examined.

Liberal Democrat leader Councillor Liz Green said: "I think lots of people, particularly in Kingston town centre, are particularly interested.

"They want to hear from Kevin. They want to hear more about the work he does and why he believes there is no conflict of interest.

"This is about trying to get back the trust in the council and showing that decisions and developments are happening how they should be."

Coun Davis holds shares in Cratus, but does not take a salary.

Past clients of Cratus have included developers CNM Estates and Amro, the company behind the student flats at 1 Penrhyn Road.

It has also worked with Hydro Properties and Cascina during the companies' bid to build a £30m floating homes scheme on the Seething Wells filter beds in Surbiton.

After Coun Davis' election last year, Cratus announced it would not take any more PR clients in Kingston to avoid conflicts of interest.

Coun Davis said: "I have nothing to answer for so it is a waste of time and it is political manoeuvring – a waste of taxpayers' money during difficult times. I think we should be calling for the leader of the opposition to resign over it. How dare she waste people's money. I'm sick to death of it."

Sir David offers wildlife film tips

Sir David Attenborough had Kingston youngsters spellbound as he spoke about urban wildlife at the Rose Theatre last week.

The celebrated naturalist was joined by Springwatch's Gordon Buchanan and the team from BBC2's Young Vets to discuss the best course of action if you find injured or abandoned wildlife.

Audience members at the Environment Trust event, of which Sir David, pictured, is a patron, were encouraged to record urban wildlife in their garden.

Sir David said: "It has never been easier to make a wildlife film. It doesn't matter how common the species, find out how to tell a story and you will learn about yourself while you are doing

REPORTER

rachael.burford@london.newsquest.co.uk

A search is on to track down the relatives of a mystery couple in a photograph taken in New Malden more than 85 years ago.

Mr and Mrs Wilding now live in Leicestershire, but are keen to reunite the photograph with the family of the people in it.

Mr Wilding said: "My wife is turning 80 this month and I was taking the photograph of my wife's father out of the frame because I've been doing a bit of photoshopping and thought it would be nice to restore it."

"Then we noticed the other photo behind it. We have no idea who this couple could be, but because the photo has been hidden for all this time it's in really good condition."

"We don't know about the history of it at all."

The only clues Mr Wilding has

are the photo was taken by Hide & Co of New Malden and the name Mrs Wells is pencilled on the back of the image.

The word "Hill" as part of the address can also be made out in faded pencil.

Mr Wilding added: "I just think it is something that the relatives of whoever is in the photo would be delighted to have because it is in such great condition and photos from that time are so rare."

"I really hope we can track them down and return it to its rightful owner."

YOU ARE INVITED TO

A FREE ASSESSMENT AND VALUATION DAY

You are invited to attend our assessment, valuation and purchase day, where TOP PRICES are agreed and offered.

Just bring along your chosen items; our valuer will give you a free appraisal and a current estimation of value. We will then discuss your best course of action and either make an offer of purchase or provide advice on your other options.

Antiques television programmes have made people more aware of the potential value of their belongings, however, the best method of realising the true cash value is not always made clear.

There are many items that are not so obviously valuable and this is where the professional valuer's expertise comes in.

There are times when the exposure of an auction is beneficial – let our experts help you to decide, but many items, where a known or intrinsic value can be simply assessed such as Gold, are just not suited for sale at auction.

Without advice, auctions can actually LOSE you money. After weeks of waiting, and assuming your item sells - commission charges, premiums and taxes reduce your likely share to only two thirds of the total transaction payment!

This is how we are able to offer you a high purchase figure as there's no premium for us and NO STOPPAGES for you, just an immediate cash settlement.

Complaints
 Who to contact

Kingston Guardian adheres to the Editors' code of practice (which you can find at ipso.co.uk). We are regulated by the Independent Press Standards Organisation (Ipso). Complaints about stories should be referred firstly to the editor by email at: newsdesk@kingstonguardian.co.uk or by post at Kingston Guardian Complaints, Floor 10, Quadrant House, The Quadrant, Sutton SM2 5AS.

It is essential your email or letter is headed "Complaint" in the subject line and contains the following information:

- Your name, email address, postal address and daytime telephone number.
- The newspaper title or website, preferably a copy of the story or at least the date, page number or website address of the article and any headline.
- A full explanation of your complaint by reference to the Editors' Code.

If you do not provide any of the information above this may delay or prevent us dealing with your complaint. Your personal details will only be used for administration purposes.

If we cannot reach a resolution between us then you can contact IPSO by email at complaints@ipso.co.uk or by post at IPSO, c/o Halton House, 20-23 Holborn, London EC1N 2JD.

If complaining about third party comments on our website articles, you should use the "report this post" function online next to the comment.

Landmark plans? Try 'ghettos in sky'

I could not agree more with Mr Innes and his view that the proposed edifice on the old post office site is far too tall (Tower block could be the first of many, May 21).

I was given to understand from a representative of Kingston Council's planning department that the maximum construction height in Kingston was that of the old Bentalls depository building, that is still standing.

If this is so, then they have breached their own policy on numerous occasions, yet the local authority does not seem a bit bothered. Why?

Is this because if it were you or I applying for planning permission, height restriction is part of the policy, whereas for Kingston Council, in anticipation of all that lovely council tax, it is only a guideline, as was told to me by another planning person.

Clearly, it is always the latter when it comes to Kingston Council – and, if proof were needed, we have the approved over-development of the old gas works site opposite Sainsbury's and the two tiny sites in Steadfast Road, all earmarked with developments far exceeding these planning constraints.

Apparently, the planners that I have spoken with – none of whom claim to live locally – believe the submitted plans for "our" town present landmark constructions.

Who do they think they are kidding with these fanciful claims and hippy trippy descriptions?

Try sky ghettos.

Good homes to be demolished

The Lidl store in Leatherhead Road, Chessington, has allegedly decided that the store needs more space and extra parking (Lidl's special offers to buy nearby homes, May 14).

It is seeking to expand by buying perfectly good houses in Sussex Gardens, that would be demolished. This is at a time when the council is saying the borough needs more available housing.

Who sanctions this and why? There is already a problem with traffic [at] the store.

TWEETS
 WEEK

Jakey @Shyman33:

First time I've spotted house martins in #Surbiton sky – now there's five of 'em!!!!

Shopping in town was an experience

Kingston has always provided a fantastic shopping experience, and the 1970s were no exception.

We had some lovely individual boutiques in Crown Arcade, including a vintage clothes shop.

A popular boutique called Sensational stood in the Market Place, and Burn's and Dee's Place was in Castle Street, almost opposite the Green Shield stamp gift centre. Chelsea Girl was a hot favourite at the time, which we all loved best.

For our vinyl singles and LPs, we went to Musicland, in Church Street, which stocked all the latest music.

The original C&A was in the Wilkinson building and seemed huge and opulent at the time.

We were lucky that the Kingston branch of Dorothy Perkins sold the Biba make-up range, where we could buy our Posh Prune lipstick and nail polish to match.

Brady's Arcade was a wonderful, colourful emporium, selling everything from records, posters, stationary and mugs to cushions, clothes and bric-a-brac.

You could carry it all home in a brightly coloured swirly-design psychedelic carrier bag.

Bentall's was always an exciting store to visit. In the summer, we would go to the Silver Cafe and sit at the counter on stools to eat our ice creams from tall glasses, while watching the bustle of Kingston through the window.

Christmas was very special, when the Wolsey Hall in Bentall's would be packed full of Christmas cards and decorations. I can still remember coming out into the cold street, the snow falling lightly, and hearing the Salvation Army band playing on the corner of the street where HSBC bank stands.

Can new MP make his (post) mark?

Some years ago I wrote to Edward Davey, pointing out that mail from his constituency and surrounding parts of Surrey no longer arrived postmarked "Kingston", but with the long-winded and meaningless "jubilee mail centre" on it instead.

He wrote back to say that he could not help me – but said he was passing my letter on to my own Member of Parliament.

Obviously, I was not asking for his help.

I was pointing out that a geographically meaningless string of words had replaced the name of his constituency – the county town of Surrey, the royal borough and ancient crowning place of our kings, of which my great uncle was mayor a century ago.

I am copying this letter to James Berry, the newly elected Member of Parliament, in the hope that, with a greater sense of civic pride, he will lean on the postmaster general.

READY TO IGNITE: In the mood for dancing? Indian and street dance groups are among the many that'll be showcasing their moves at the second Ignition Dance Festival in Kingston next month. The festival starts at the Rose Theatre on Wednesday, June 3, with six top choreographers debuting original work. Nineteen dance groups from Kingston and west London will then be creating some noise on Sunday, June 7, during the festival's first ever community dance platform.

Ignition producer Rosie Whitney-Fish says: "When we advertised the call out we were hoping there would be enough interest for one performance. Instead we found ourselves sifting through more than 90 applications."

These applications were whittled down to the lucky 19 groups that'll be showing off their talents in two separate performances. MC for the afternoon will be Hakeem Onibudo, hip-hop director and choreographer from Impact Dance.

Ahead of releasing his new book, comedian and writer John Williams hosts a night of comedy at Kingston's Rose Theatre. SAM McFAUL reports

SERIOUS LAUGHS

It's not often it's acceptable to laugh about disability, but comedian John Williams is setting out to do just that next month, when he hosts a charity comedy gala.

Williams will compere the Express Comedy Gala in aid of Tolworth-based, non-profit company Express CIC.

Attempting to dispel misconceptions about disability, the night will feature stand-up slots from blind comedian Chris McCausland, Elis James, from Russell Howard's Good News and Don Biswas, who has Asperger syndrome.

All proceeds of the event are going to Express CIC, which supports young people with autism.

Williams says: "I'd like the show to be a normal comedy night, sending a positive message about disability. We're embracing that disability can be funny."

Williams is perhaps best known for his one-man comedy show My Son's Not Rainman, which tells the story of him and his autistic son. The show has proved a big hit, much to his surprise.

"I was wary of the comedy angle and scared that people would think I was making fun of autism," he says. "However, I was blown away by its success."

In 2013 Williams was asked to be patron of Express CIC, by founders Annette Williams and Tracey Gaggiotti.

"They turned up to one of the first shows I did and kept badgering me," he says. "They've really struggled and fought to get where they are now."

"I live in a different borough, but if I had something like Express CIC on my doorstep, it would have been brilliant for me and my son. Not enough is done [by local councils]. That's why mostly self-funded organisations like Express are so important, as they can reach areas where the council can't."

Williams has written for the BBC and appeared on Radio 4's Today programme. He also has a book coming out in September, My Son's Not Rainman, published by Michael O'Mara Books, with a percentage of profits going to Express CIC.

● Autism is a developmental disability that affects how a person communicates with, and relates to, others and is estimated to affect one in 100 people in the UK. Most people affected will struggle with some form of social interaction. Recent statistics from the National Autistic Society show only 15 per cent of young people with autism are currently employed. Express CIC aims to change with its work experience scheme. Visit expresscic.org.uk.

SPECIAL ONES

When the Specials perform at Kew Gardens, they will be without three original members – but drummer John “Brad” Bradbury says the door will always be open, writes Tom Ambrose.

The 2tone legends reunited in 2008, but keyboardist and songwriter Jerry Dammers chose not to be part of the band he formed 30 years previously.

Seven years and a handful of sell-out tours later and only four of the magnificent seven remain, although Bradbury says the door is always open for them to return.

He says: “It is an interesting process we have gone through, starting with the six members when we reformed at Bestival and people [vocalist Neville Staple and guitarist Roddy Radiation] leaving of their own volition.

“But I see the whole thing, the Specials, as a brand bigger than any of its members – we have got this healthy development between the rhythm section and vocals.

“I think the people that really want to be there are there at the moment.

“Although, to me, no door closes and when you leave it is a question of making in-roads back into the band but I’m not sure they want to come back.”

Brad, lead singer Terry Hall, Lynval Golding and Horace Panter have been joined recently by Steve Craddock, who plays guitar with Ocean Colour Scene, and the Dead 60s’ Matt McManamon.

One man unlikely to join his former band mates is founding member Dammers, who joined the band for just two rehearsals when they reunited before walking away, seemingly forever.

Bradbury says: “Jerry Dammers came along to two rehearsal sessions, but he didn’t find it conducive.

“To be honest we had an idea of what we wanted to do, he had his opinions but I’m not sure if he hung around long enough to work his ideas into what we were doing.

“They were short-lived rehearsals and I couldn’t attend one of them because I had done my back in, but contrary to what you read elsewhere it just didn’t work out.”

The Specials drummer adds he would be keen for Dammers, and other former members, to return some day, and that he has no problem with people coming and going.

He says: “Of course it would be good if we all got back together one day – it would be great.”

The Specials’ live shows may have been toned down since 1979, but they still rank among the best live performers in the world – although there is one thing Bradbury is missing.

He says: “In the old days it was all about the stage invasions. Now that doesn’t happen anymore because of the health and safety aspect of course, but that was the highlight of the gig for me back then.

“We were in Amsterdam once playing Sock It to ‘Em JB when the stage collapsed – you can still see it on YouTube. It was frightening to watch but nobody got hurt. In fact, we had two or three collapse on us.”

As well as his passion for ska and rocksteady, Bradbury’s true love is northern soul, demonstrated in his later band JB’s All-stars, whose single Alphabet Army was the last release on Dammers’ 2tone label.

He says: “Northern soul is in my blood, the same as reggae or rocksteady, they are the two things I grew up on. “They are lifeblood to me, something I play every day.”

Bradbury says: “I am really looking forward to the gig. It’s going to be a new experience for Kew, that’s for sure – our fans are incredibly respectful so I think you can say it will be the right type of mayhem.”

Building for the FUTURE

What does the Conservative victory at the General Election mean for the housing industry? JOHN ELLIOTT, managing director of Millwood Designer Homes, talks about the key housing points from the Tory manifesto.

"One of the most important issues is addressing the first-time buyer crisis. The Conservatives have pledged to build more affordable homes, including 200,000 starter homes for first-time buyers in England under the age of 40, priced at 20 per cent below market value.

"In addition, the Help to Buy scheme (aimed at those with a small deposit of at least five per cent) will be extended to 2020, and a new Help to Buy ISA will be introduced to help young people save a deposit for their first home.

"However, affordability needs to be fully addressed from the ground up, and this includes the Financial Conduct Authority's strict lending criteria, along with the banks and finance companies tightened rules.

"The reason for introducing Help to Buy was to enable more people on to the housing ladder, but if we had more realistic lending criteria, perhaps we wouldn't need these schemes in the first place.

"There are millions of people in private rented homes who are perfectly capable of paying a mortgage each month and are desperate to buy but have no hope of doing so, and there are three million adult children living with their parents because they can't afford to rent or buy. This is the stark reality that there is something fundamentally wrong at the core of the industry.

"The Conservatives have also pledged to extend the right-to-buy scheme - allowing families in housing association properties the chance to buy their home with discounts of up to 70 per cent.

"There is concern that this policy will be too costly, and will only benefit a select few. However, it will give 1.3 million more the opportunity to be homeowners and help them to prepare for their retirement now that pensions are such poor investments.

"All eyes will be on the Conservatives to see if they can live up to their promises. For the housing industry, it is the promise that aspiring to own a home is not just a dream but a reality for all and, more importantly, that there will be enough homes to achieve it."

Threat to front gardens

With space being at a premium in the South of England more and more of us are choosing to pave over our front gardens in order to create additional parking space or somewhere to store recycling bins according to estate agent Goodfellows.

Three times as many gardens are paved over than they were a decade ago according to the RHS, Royal Horticultural Society.

The RHS have stated that not only does paving over a front garden have a negative impact on the environment but also on our health. Paving or concreting doesn't allow water to penetrate into the soil which helps remove rain water during flash flooding, in hot weather the sun's rays are absorbed into hard surfaces causing heat radiation at night.

Adding a parking space can add value to a property in urban areas where parking is at a premium, in London a parking space can add up to 10 per cent to the value of your home.

There are very few planning rules concerning pulling up lawns and replacing them with concrete. Over the past five years there have been 120,000 applications for new dropped kerbs.

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984

THE A3 GLA ROAD (KINGSTON BY-PASS, ROYAL BOROUGH OF KINGSTON UPON THAMES) (TEMPORARY PROHIBITION OF TRAFFIC) ORDER 2015

- Transport for London hereby gives notice that it has made the above named Traffic Order under section 14(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 for the purpose specified in paragraph 2. The effect of the Order is summarised in paragraph 3.
- The purpose of the Order is to enable footbridge works to take place on Kingston By-Pass
- The effect of the Order will be to prohibit any vehicle from entering, exiting or proceeding on:
 - Hook Rise North eastbound on-slip connecting Hook Road and Kingston Bypass;
 - Hook Rise South westbound off-slip connecting Kingston By-pass and Hook Road;
 - A3 Kingston By-Pass from 200 metres east of Roundabout with Hook Road to 200 metres west of roundabout with Hook Road.

Works shall be phased such that only one closure shall be in place at any time.
The Order will be effective at certain times between 30th May 2015 and 29th August 2015 every night 9:00 PM to 5:00AM or when those works have been completed, whichever is the sooner. The prohibitions will apply only during such times and to such extent as shall from time to time be indicated by traffic signs.

- The prohibitions will not apply in respect of:
 - any vehicle being used for the purposes of those works or for fire brigade, ambulance or police purposes;
 - anything done with the permission or at the direction of a police constable in uniform or a person authorised by Transport for London.
- At such times as the prohibition is in force an alternative route will be indicated by traffic signs via:
 - Eastbound on-slip closure: Hook Rise South, A309 Kingston By-Pass, Claygate Lane roundabout;
 - Westbound off-slip road closure: A309 Kingston By-Pass, Claygate Lane Roundabout, A309 Kingston By-Pass;
 - A3 Kingston By-Pass closure: A309 Kingston By-Pass, Portsmouth Road, Claremont Lane, Copsem Lane and reverse to normal route of travel.

Anna Williamson is a best known as a Nickelodeon and CITV presenter. She also appears on ITV's Daybreak and Lorraine and is an entertainment reporter for Digital Spy, writes Matt Westcott.

Anna is also a Childline Counsellor and has recently become an official ambassador for the charity Mind. For more on Anna visit www.annawilliamson.co.uk or follow her on Twitter @annawilliamsTV

What was your first car? My first car was a second hand Peugeot 205, red and rusty, but all mine. It cost me £1,000.

How many times did it take to pass your test? I passed my test first time thankfully. I had a driving instructor called Clive who looked like Father Christmas and I learnt in a Ford Fiesta.

Who would be your ideal fantasy passenger and where would you go? I would love to go for a little drive with Superman – aka Henry Cavill – and quite honestly we could go to the local dump for all I'd care! Just his presence would be enough.

What is your dream car? An Audi R8 – very, very sexy.

How would you describe your driving style? Slightly aggressive if I'm honest. I learnt to drive in central London so I'm used to having to duck and weave a bit.

Tell me one driving anecdote

STAR IN A CAR:

Anna Williamson, television presenter and ambassador for the charity, Mind from your past? I once reversed into my parents' elderly gardener's car – by accident. He was mortified and my parents made me pay for the repair. He got a great deal, the car was an old banger at the start and perfect afterwards!

What are you listening to? I like to listen to the radio in the car. It makes me feel in touch with what's going and I love a sing-song.

What do you drive now? I drive an Audi TT Coupe Quattro and I love it! It's four-wheel drive which is helpful in the winter months too.

Toyota model upgrade

Japanese car maker Toyota has announced a number of modest updates for its popular GT86 sports coupe.

According to its maker, the GT86 remains every inch the best driver's car to be had for the money – and can now be had for less, thanks to a price reduction.

New wheels and new colours lead the features list, with the range-topping Aero model running on gloss black 18-inch rims and available with a hot GT86 Orange paint finish.

In line with customer preference, Aero is now exclusively available with six-speed manual transmission.

The larger alloys are also newly available as an option on the core GT86 model.

The Primo model, entry point to the range, moves on to 16-inch alloys and comes with a £300 lower price tag.

An on-going customer offer is available, adding a further £505 saving to deliver an on-the-road price of £22,195.

Pricing for other models in the range remains unchanged.

This is not the end of the GT86 story for 2015, as Toyota is promising a new special edition model will be joining the range this summer.

For now, order books for the refreshed GT86 are open with first deliveries to customers in mid-July.

Kingston's handball team, right, secured a Balfour Beatty London Youth Games silver medal at the Copper Box on Saturday – 12 months on from finishing joint last in the 2014 event.

Third place in their group – thanks to wins over Barnet and Bexley – paved the way for a 4-2 win over Greenwich in the last 16.

The girls followed that with a 2-0 quarter-final victory over Redbridge and a 4-2 semi-final triumph over Ealing, before a 3-1 final defeat to Hackney ended hopes of gold.

STICKING TOGETHER: Casuals confident squad will not fall apart this summer

Hicks and Bettache move on

SPORTS EDITOR
STUART AMOS

london.newsquest.co.uk

Hampton & Richmond Borough boss Alan Dowson reckons the time is right for Corinthian Casuals defender Joe Hicks to step up to the Ryman Premier League.

Hicks agreed terms with the ambitious Beavers on Friday ending his five-year spell at Casuals, who he skippered to a record Ryman Division One South points haul last term.

The departure of Casuals boss Matt Howard to Carshalton Athletic had left some fearing his squad would crumble this summer with Hicks having been joined in quitting King George's Field by former Fulham trainee Maz Bettache, who has signed for Hendon.

But the club, who have already secured the future of prolific striker Jamie Byatt, insist new chief James Bracken has plans to strengthen the squad with new arrivals set to be unveiled over the coming weeks.

Spokesman Stuart Tree said "On behalf of all at Corinthian Casuals, I'd like to take this opportunity to thank Joe and Maz for everything they achieved here.

"They were both fantastic for us on the a poorer place for that.

"We always say to players that this is a club where those looking to further their careers can forge experience of playing in such a competitive league.

"I'm sure their time with us has made them more complete footballers and will surely excel at their new clubs.

"But we have exciting times ahead at Casuals. With James Bracken taking charge, the signs are already very positive and we're aiming for an even better season than the one just gone."

Hicks is expected to partner former Kingstonian defender Kieran Murphy at the back for Hampton next term as boss Alan Dowson – a former manager at Kingsmeadow – bids to take the Beavers back to the Conference South.

"Joe is more than ready to step up to the Ryman Premier League and will be an important part of the squad," added Dowson.

Hampton have also signed ex-Ks man Josh Casey – among others – this summer.

pitch and real ambassadors to the club off it.

"It will be a shame not to have them and their supportive families at King George's. Casuals will be

Flick: Cil van der Merwe hits one to the boundary

Der Merwe the swerve

Cil van der Merwe's unbeaten 63-ball 86 helped Malden Wanderers' first XI back to winning ways with a 98-run success against Camberley at Cambridge Avenue, writes Steve Morgan.

A good start was needed after last week's poor show at Ashted, and openers Alex Butler (76) and Will Clapp (19) delivered to put on 64.

The Stags were 156 for six when van der Merwe cut loose, hitting four sixes and eight fours to hoist the total to 252 for 9 after 50 overs.

Michael Cottrell (4-44) removed all but one of Camberley's top five with the score on 36 to put the visitors on the back foot.

Tim Burns (65) and Trevor McGeer (48) offered resistance, but two wickets each for Will Sabey, Will Riley and Neil Mander dismissed the visitors for 154.

Captain James Wackett said: "252 was always likely to be a tough chase, thanks to Alex's knock and some wonderful striking by Cil."

Malden go to Spencer on Saturday.

Record breaking Pippa

Kingston & Polytechnic Harrier Pippa Earley was in record breaking form at the Surrey Athletics Championships on Saturday.

The 14-year-old claimed 75m hurdles gold in 11.13 seconds to set a new championship best in the event for the first time since 1977.

On the same day, she broke the U15 girls long jump championship record of 5.61 metres – set in 1976 – with a new mark of 5.73m.

The Notre Dame School student's efforts mean she is ranked number one in the UK in both events and she added a U15 girls' 100m bronze medal to her collection for good measure on Sunday.

Kingston's athletes were in golden form at Kingsmeadow throughout the weekend as senior women's team captain Pippa Wingate claimed the senior shot and hammer titles with throws of 12.40m and 55.08m, respectively.

Men's throws specialist Chris Dack eased to gold medals in the discus (42.92m) and shot (15.09m), while Gordon Lester won the senior men's pole vault with a vault of 3.85m and William Gwynne did same in the U20 men's pole vault thanks to an effort of 3.65m.

Alex Meaklim won U17 boys' triple jump gold (12.61m) and long jump silver (5.93m), while Rhianna Reynolds claimed the U17 girls' triple jump (10.87m) and high jump (1.54m) titles.

Nicole Kendall streaked home to the U20 women's 400m gold in a time of 56.36 secs, while Chris Hall sprinted to the men's 110m hurdles crown in a time of 15.60 secs, before jumping 6.66m for long jump silver.

See this week's Surrey Comet for more pictures and results.

Coombe Boys' double triumph

Coombe Boys' School's U15 football team put in a dazzling display to claim national glory after winning the English Schools' FA PlayStation U15 Open Schools' Cup on Wednesday, writes Tom Bowers.

Striker Liam Millar bagged a hat-trick as Coombe triumphed 9-0 over Ribblesdale High School from Clitheroe at Reading's Madejski stadium to repeat last year's U14 Schools' Cup success.

Ryan Sessegnon and Cameron Thompson – who opened the scoring after just 61 seconds – each notched doubles and the list of scorers was completed by Tyrese Francois and Chris Kelly.
